ANNOUNCEMENT

The subject index for this issue of the Bibliography of Agriculture was prepared with the aid of optical scanners and computers. During the year subject headings assigned to the 100,000 citations listed in the January–November issues were typed onto sheets with typewriters using special fonts recognizable by optical scanning equipment. These sheets were then passed through a scanner, which "read" them and converted the information onto magnetic tape. This tape was then passed through a computer, which sorted the entries on it into alphabetical order and printed them out, one column to the page. These pages were then pasted together to make up the two column pages which you see, in reduced form, as the subject index.

Our immediate plans for improving the subject index include the completion of page-formatting programs (now in process), which will print out subject headings with three columns to the page, and with item numbers in numerical order. In addition we plan to issue subject indexes with each monthly issue early in 1967, with an automatically cumulated index at the end of the year. We will appreciate your opinions on how the inclusion of monthly subject indexes enhances the usefulness of this Bibliography.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF AGRICULTURE

Vol. 30

December 1966

No. 12

The Bibliography of Agriculture is an index to the literature of agriculture and the allied sciences received in the National Agricultural Library. Publications from any country are indexed, provided they are in one of the languages shown in CAPITALS at top of next column, or have summaries, abstracts, or translated titles in one of those languages.

Literature received more than one year after publication is generally not indexed. Exceptions are made for important scientific publications.

Indexing of articles on the processing of agricultural products is limited to those on primary processing.

Unsigned articles and those signed with pseudonyms or initials, editorials, letters to the editor, and columns appearing regularly, are omitted.

For more detailed coverage of the literature on pests and their control, please consult the Pesticides Documentation Bulletin, a biweekly publication of the National Agricultural Library.

FORMAT

The Bibliography is a classified arrangement of references under the following subjects:

- Plant Science
- Soils and Fertilizers
- Forestry
- Animal Industry
- Entomology
- Agricultural Engineering
- Agricultural Products
- Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology
- Food and Human Nutrition
- Miscellaneous

The classified section is followed by the listing of:

- New Periodicals and Serials
- Translations
- USDA Publications
- State Agricultural Experiment Station Publications
- State Agricultural Extension Service Publications
- Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) Publications

The last section of each monthly issue is the Personal and Organizational index for that issue.

For monographs the title is shown in the original language, followed by the English version. Titles of foreign language articles in serial publications are given in English only; the language of the text is shown in abbreviated form in parentheses at the end of the title. The following notations are used:

(Af)	Afrikaans	(Ic)	Icelandic
(Al)	Albanian	(In)	Indonesian

Abbreviated names of the publications cited prior to July 1, 1964 are those from USDA Miscellaneous Publication 765—List of Serials Currently Received in the Library of the United States Department of Agriculture, July 1, 1957. Abbreviated names of all new periodical titles received after July 1, 1964, are taken from the American Standard for Periodical Title Abbreviations. As time allows, abbreviations set up for titles before that date will be converted to the new form.

The presence of the term "Ref." in the citation indicates that the article contains ten or more references to the literature.

Following each citation is the Library classification number which should be used when requesting loans or reproduction of articles.
